

PARAPHRASING

WHAT IS PARAPHRASING?

The word paraphrasing comes from two parts:

Para → means similar or beside

Phrasing → means the way we express something using words

So:

Paraphrasing = expressing the same idea in a different way.

Paraphrasing means expressing the same idea using different words and sometimes a different sentence structure.

When we paraphrase:

- The meaning stays the same
- The words or structure change
- Paraphrasing is an important skill in academic writing and communication.

PARAphrase It!

Put the text in your own words.

Avoid copying the text.

Rearrange similar text.

Ask yourself if you included all the important points.

EXAMPLES

1-Original:

Many students find mathematics difficult.

Paraphrase:

A lot of students think mathematics is hard.

2-Original:

Technology makes communication faster and easier.

Paraphrase:

Communication becomes quicker and simpler because of technology.

HOW CAN WE PARAPHRASE?

There are three common ways:

1. Use Synonyms (change words)

Example:

many → a lot of

difficult → hard fast → quick

2. Change the Sentence Structure

Example:

Active → Passive

Researchers conducted the study.

→ The study was conducted by researchers.

3. Change the Order of Ideas

Example:

Students succeed when they manage their time well.

→ When students manage their time well, they succeed.

Example with Structure Change

7

Example 1

Original:

Doctors treat many patients every day.

Paraphrase:

Many patients are treated by doctors every day.

Example 2

Original:

Regular exercise improves a person's health.

Paraphrase:

A person's health improves with regular exercise.

Example 3

Original:

Students learn medical vocabulary in English classes.

Paraphrase:

Medical vocabulary is learned by students in English classes.