

Types of Sentences

Any sentence in English consists of:

Subject + Verb + Object + Complement

There are four types of sentences in English:

1) Simple Sentence

A simple sentence consists of a subject and a verb, and it expresses a complete thought.

Examples:

- Ahmed waited for the train.
 - The baby laughs.
 - He drives a car.
 - Ahmed and Omar waited for the train.

2) Compound Sentence

A compound sentence consists of two independent clauses joined by a coordinating conjunction:

for / and / nor / but / or / yet / so

These are called FANBOYS.

Examples:

- I like reading books, and my sister likes watching movies.
 - He wanted to travel, but he didn't have enough money.
 - She studied hard, so she passed the exam.

3) Complex Sentence

A complex sentence consists of one independent clause and one or more dependent clauses joined by a subordinating conjunction such as:

because / although / if / when / since / after / before / while

Examples:

- I went to the store because I needed milk.
(I went to the store) → Independent clause
(because I needed milk) → Dependent clause
 - Although it was raining, we went for a walk.
 - When she arrived, the party started.

4) Compound-Complex Sentence

A compound-complex sentence consists of two or more independent clauses and at least one dependent clause.

They are joined by a mix of coordinating and subordinating conjunctions.

Examples:

- I wanted to go to the beach, but it was raining because it was monsoon season.
Independent clauses:
(I wanted to go to the beach)
(It was raining)
Dependent clause:
(because it was monsoon season)
- Although she was tired, she finished her work, and then she went home.
- If it rains tomorrow, we will stay inside, but if it's sunny, we will go hiking.

Dependent Clause

A dependent clause is a group of words that has a subject and a verb but cannot stand alone as a complete sentence. It needs an independent clause to make sense.

Independent Clause

- It is a complete sentence that can stand alone.
- It has a subject and a verb
- It expresses a complete thought.
